Study part-time at NCAD

The National College of Art & Design, Dublin, is Ireland's leading provider of art and design education. Our campus on Thomas Street in Dublin's historic city centre is home to a community of 1,500 undergraduate, graduate and part-time students engaged in a wide range of study and research across the disciplines of Design, Education, Fine Art and Visual Culture. NCAD has been the most significant provider of Art & Design education in Ireland for over 250 years and is a Recognised College of University College Dublin.

Continuing Education Autumn Part Time Courses

Part time courses in art and design are offered at different levels to facilitate students who want to participate in flexible learning opportunities, gain qualifications and progress within third level. We offer options for beginners, as well as for advanced students who want to progress through accredited programmes at third level.

If you have a commitment to making fine art and design work and want to continue in practice; are interested in expanding your art skills and knowledge of art processes; are an experienced visual arts practitioner who wants to return and renew you arts practice; or are a mature student who is interested in progressing within the higher education system and want to pursue a career in visual art and design - we have a course for you!

Students can access the library for reading purposes and those registered for accredited options such as Certificate or Diploma courses will have borrowing rights in the library.

CEAD students can submit work for the annual exhibition, which takes place in July on the college campus.

We look forward to welcoming you to NCAD.
