Introduction

This module is offered to all incoming year one students and provides an opportunity to:

- Learn how to locate, navigate and utilise key information resources within NCAD Library and beyond.
- Develop a range of study skills to assist in their academic development and emerging professional identity as artists/designers.

This module addresses the development of students' identity within higher education and wider as well as the acquisition of generic study skills applicable to practice. Students will be encouraged to foster attitudinal approaches appropriate to their formation as professionals.

This module will provide an introduction to art, design, and creative practice as a mode of enquiry starting from the concrete needs of the student as a learner. Understanding key concepts, developing the capacity for independent enquiry and managing learning and assessment are essential skills within higher education. As part of the process of creating a learning identity, students will consider the following subject matter: the city as a cultural resource; effective use of library and related resources for research; the mastery of academic writing skills and techniques. Students will engage in a programme of visits to galleries and museums with a view to acquiring a range of key skills and knowledge sets applicable to the development of their practice.

What will I learn?

On successful completion of this module students will be able to:

¹ European Credit Transfer and Accumulation System, where 60 ECTS credits equate to the workload of a full-time academic year

1. Effectively use library and other information sources
2. Show evidence that they have begun to navigate the cultural resources of Dublin successfully;
3. Show evidence of an emerging capacity to communicate this research effectively.

How will I have the chance to evaluate the module?

It is important to NCAD that students inform the development of teaching and learning at NCAD. We encourage all students to communicate their concerns and their observations about their study to members of staff so that any changes can be made in a timely manner.

About 2/3rds of the way through the trimester, a student forum will be convened to gather students' comments about their study and the delivery of the programme. In addition, at the end of the Autumn Trimester, students have the opportunity to complete an online evaluation of their study and experience at NCAD. These evaluation events are important to current and future students, to ensure we can enhance the delivery of programmes at NCAD.

In addition, you are invited to discuss your experience on the module with your lecturers at any point during the year. You can also relay your comments to the class student representative who will communicate your comments to the staff.
